Subject: Microsoft settlement

It is time to difinitively settle the Microsoft case. It has been proven that Microsoft has given the consumer the best value. Other companies could have come up with other highly competetive software if they had the intelligence to do so. They were not blocked in any way to develop their own more competitive products. AOL is now planning litigation which is untimely and clearly meant to undermine efforts at settlement. It will be costly to the consumer and not in the public best interest.
